RELATIONSHIPS

I am a 43-year-old man with no friends... and I love it

It may sound lonely, but my family are noisy, my colleagues interesting and books are the best company of all, says Stig Abell

If you're thinking a bit about solitude recently, and you just because of the International Loneliness Institute, which seems to be the first ever to have been founded through the use of the Coronavirus. It's a bit of a surprise, but it's also a bit of a warning sign of something.

It was my decision, not of my own free will, and I'm not sure that means an ordinary lonely because my friend is a manager who makes me feel like I'm not really there, but about how he has been away from home. The thing which is almost certainly as serious as it sounds. The manager is a 40-year-old who has been away from home for a while, but he's not really there. He's not really there. He's not really there. He's not really there.

FRINDSHIP IS A GENUINE FEELING

Loneliness is dangerous for you because it can lead to mental health problems, but it's also a sign of something. It's not just about how you feel, but about how you feel. It's not just about how you feel, but about how you feel. It's not just about how you feel, but about how you feel.

COLLEAGUES ARE GOOD SUBSTITUTES

I've always been lucky to work with interesting people. I get plenty of conversation every day. Lots of chances to talk about pretty much anything. It's not just about how you feel, but about how you feel. It's not just about how you feel, but about how you feel.

Gel nail polish under investigation over allergic reactions

By Rachel Miller Reynolds

An investigation has been launched into the increasing numbers of people developing allergic reactions to gel manicures.

Dermatologists say they are now regularly treating people for health issues caused by gel polish - some of which are life-changing.

The Government's Office for Product Safety and Standards said it is investigating the issue and that the first point of contact for anyone who develops an allergy after using a polish is their local trading standards department.

The vast majority of gel manicures are safe and do not lead to health issues.

But the British Association of Dermatologists warned that acrylic and gel manicures - from nail polish to acrylic nails - can have adverse effects on some people.

The health body has urged people to stick to traditional nail varnishes, which are easier to remove.

Dr Shirley Buckley, who co-authored a report into the dangers of nail varnishes in nail polish, told the BBC: "We're seeing a more and more because more people are using UV lamps, developing an allergy and then going to a salon - and the allergy gets worse."

She said it "can be a bit of a pain", people would stop using gel nail polish and go back to old-fashioned nail varnish.

Gel nails have soared in popularity over the past few years, as the glossy polish can last for several weeks without chipping.

M&S withdraws T-shirt in name row

By Dawn O'Shea Milligan

M&S has become embroiled in a row with a craft beer company after being accused of "ripping off" its name as a T-shirt.

The retailer has removed a black and white "Pine Crown Brewery" T-shirt from its shelves.

Stephen Tibbett, with the wording "Craft Beer Co" on the front, leaving a complaint from the brewer.

The Craft Beer Co contacted the retailer asking: "What's the idea with these T-shirts? Are we meant to be the product from you, or are we not supposed to be?"

M&S said: "We didn't mean to cause any offence, or have misused the beer from sale as we are not a brewer."

A spokesperson for M&S said: "We take intellectual property very seriously and, while the T-shirt was designed as a good faith, we're taking the decision to remove the product from sale as we can investigate further."

Queen's top thong

TIGHT leather shorts worn on stage by Queen's Freddie Mercury could fetch €14,000 at auction. The entrepreneur sponsored them for the encore of a Birmingham concert in December 1980.

Paula Jacky Coan and Jim Jacky wrote in their 1982 book "Freddie" that they decided to check the audience with the shortest, lightest black leather shorts he could find. "They didn't have much to the imagination, but no one complained." The shorts were eventually bought by a fan in Southampton in 1986. The sale takes place in Newton St. Nicholas, Massachusetts, UK, on April 25.

Skinner's tears for crash pal

By OLIVER GRADY
COMIC Frank Skinner broke down on his radio show yesterday as he revealed one of his best mates is fighting for his life in hospital after suffering a serious head injury from a car accident. The 53-year-old comedian said the crash happened just a few days before his last live performance. He said: "Kev [Kevlar] was in a very big road accident. He was in hospital and it's not looking great. I didn't want to be that news anchor announcing him. I don't know if any of you saw me at the end of the show for Gareth this week. I'm not going to pretend. It's hell, but that's where he is."

FEMALE FOOTIE COACH IS ON THE BALL

It has been a male dominated game, but not any longer

By OLIVER GRADY
It's a long time since the FAI introduced women's football as an official part of the game. Now, with the Women's Super League and the new FAI Women's Premier League, the game is taking off. Laura Herrera, a former professional player and now a coach, is leading the charge. She says: "The game has always been there, but it's not been taken seriously. Now, with the FAI taking it seriously, it's a different story. I think the FAI is the only organisation that's taken it seriously. I think they've done a brilliant job of it. I think they've done a brilliant job of it. I think they've done a brilliant job of it."

IAIN WHYTE

Action needed now on a social care service in crisis

It is time to take a hard look at the way we fund and deliver social care services. The current system is unsustainable and needs to be replaced by a more efficient and equitable model. We need to move away from a system where care is often provided in hospitals and care homes, and towards a system where care is provided in the community. This will require a significant investment in training and support for care workers, and a re-organisation of the way we fund and deliver social care services. We need to ensure that care is available to all who need it, and that it is of a high quality. This is a challenge that we must face now, before the situation becomes even more dire.

JULE BANDEL

Time to put real power in the hands of the people

We need to ensure that the people have a real say in the way their communities are run. This means moving away from a system where decisions are made by a small group of people, and towards a system where decisions are made by the people themselves. We need to ensure that everyone has a voice, and that their views are taken into account. This is a challenge that we must face now, before the situation becomes even more dire.
